DISCUSSION ITEMS:

Question	Person(s) Responsible	Notes and Next Steps
What steps have been taken over the last week in responding to and preparing for the impact of the COVID-19 situation? What other steps should the college and/or district consider from the perspective of ELT members and/or their constituents?	Thomas Greene and Project Lead(s)	Background <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - late Wednesday evening college notified - Solano patient brought to UCD - ARC & CRC students exposed – one paramedic and one respiratory care - students self-quarantined - notice sent to campus on Thursday - team brought together including Dee Dee Gilliam, Gabe Ross, Melanie Dixon, Scott Crow, and Chief Savidge - SCC students exposed - FAQ site developed - District is taking their direction from State and Sacramento County Public Health agencies - protocols are hygiene - increasing surface disinfecting protocols across campus - not shaking hands - study abroad program suspended: some students may decide to stay on their own; all classes will be offered online - a few requests to turn all courses online - students and staff fearful: Dee Dee and colleges nurses can have personal conversations - questions and protocols will be developed for if/when an ARC student or employee becomes infected - pivoting towards deeper preparation for long-term impact Current Information <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - media seems to be overblown - it's a virus just like any other, possibly a little more potent - risk of dying is quite low; risk of contraction is low - concern that student came back to campus after exposure - possibility of student contracting who is working at UCD is very, very low; hospital protocols already in place - basic hygiene and increased cleaning protocols - fear turning to anxiety is more contagious than the virus - faculty expressed frustration when college closed due to fire – DE classes not able to continue - makes presumption that all DE students have access to technology - how do we support students who have to miss classes – Academic Senate needs to have conversations - flexibility will be important - conversations going on at all levels to be flexible while continuing to serve our students - students will be informed that changes may occur in class - consistent message to students across the district - what if some instructors refuse to use DE systems placing students in danger of not graduating, not being able to transfer, etc. - not all students can easily and equally transition to DE - faculty need extra resources in order to be flexible - there is currently a general sense of calm with understanding we're in unchartered territory - messages from faculty to faculty about being mindful and permissive should things turn worse - be mindful that we're not adding to a faculty member's burden of creating another option for students who miss class
