Welcome and Introductions	Raquel Arata
Icebreaker Activity	Neue Leung
Review of Project Charter	Raquel Arata
Introduction to Available Data	Raquel Arata	Questions to IR: Considering that there are 22 groups, can the DI report be disaggregated by the 22 groups? Can the breakdown of non-white and other pacific islander groups be added to the DI report? How can Afghan and Hmong students be added to separate sub-categories? There are specific needs within each of these groups. Note: Without disaggregated data of all groups, it will be challenging to address the needs of each group. To do: Email DI report to API team.
Review of Timeline and Meeting Dates	Raquel Arata	Future Meetings: -Wednesdays from 10am-12pm
Equity Primer/Getting into an Equity mindset	Pam Chao	Pam Chao shared the definition of equity, the importance of context before content, equality vs equity, and the importance of using the power we have to institutionalize equity.
ACTION ITEMS:
Question	Person(s) Responsible	Notes and Decision(s)	Next Steps
What should we name our team? Choices include: Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI), Asian and Pacific Islander American (APIA), Asian American Native Hawaiian Pacific Islander (AANHPI), or Asian, Pacific Islander, and Desi American (APIDA).	All	-Selecting a name that is comprehensive is important. -Considering that there are so many subgroups, we should include an asterisk noting the complexity of the various ethnicities. -Selecting a name that is familiar (API, APA, AAPI); selecting a common name that we all recognize is important; using an unfamiliar name may cause confusion. API-Asian Pacific Islander APA-Asian Pacific Islander American AAPI-Asian American Pacific Islander -APIDA: This acronym may not speak to inclusion considering that Desi means from a specific group. -The team has decided to go with API to keep it consistent with how the various groups are known.

What are the Team's communication preferences?	All	The team has a Google folder with Los Rios. Neue will add all team members to the folder. Anyone with the link can view and access the files.
