ACTION ITEMS:

Question	Person(s) Responsible	Notes and Decision(s)	Next Steps
ARC Staffing Audit Several institutional problems have emerged this term related to staffing shortages at the administrative, faculty, and classified levels. To prevent future issues and to provide transparent communication to the campus, I propose an audit of all offices and departments on campus that will be shared as a report to ELT and made available to the campus. The report would include requests for staffing, current vacancies, and the timelines/status of current searches.	Jeff Sacha	0	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • High turnover in administration, faculty (full-time and part-time), classified staffing shortages • Impacts to faculty and students due to these vacancies • Proposed: shall we perform an audit to determine where vacancies exist and what the plan is to fill them? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> o Discussion: How do we backfill staff when there is a temporary or sudden vacancy (jury duty, illness, sudden resignation)? How does our model support those vacancies? o Discussion: How much of this is due to replacing staff and hiring issues? And how much is due to our new organizational structure? o Proposed that we can get basic data on hiring impacts, including racial disaggregation o Asked how do we make change? Should we at least measure the impact so we can report on the issue? o Referenced remote work as a potential impact, and that staff hiring may be more difficult if remote work is not allowed. Negotiated each year, does not provide stability o Discussed three

			possible project foci: <ul style="list-style-type: none">🔗 How effectively we support students across modalities🔗 How hiring processes and their timelines impact institutional effectiveness🔗 How resilient our existing organizational structure against absences and resignations
Study of Failed Full-Time Faculty Searches This past academic year saw our campus fail 10 of the 22 full-time faculty searches we conducted. This high failure rate suggests the need for a study of the trends and processes that led to both successful and unsuccessful full-time faculty searches. I propose we study these failed searches to understand how to improve the institutional effectiveness of this vital College process.	Jeff Sacha		<ul style="list-style-type: none">• 10 faculty searches out of 22 were failed last semester, impacting our ability to support students• Proposed: that we do some research to find out why the searches were failed• Concern: will the confidentiality of the process prevent us from being able to get the information we need?• If we interview the committee chairs, and they say they followed the process, what further information do we have?• Can we get the information we need from these interviews? What information can we glean from existing data (applicant demographics, etc.)?• Desire to get broader data to observe trends in hiring practices, rather than a single snapshot.• Proposed to interview committee members to get a sense of what worked well and what went wrong• Can we get correlation with quantitative information (e.g. number of screening criteria, number of interview questions, weighting of criteria, etc.) and committee success?• Suggested that we broaden this to look at effective hiring practices in general, so we're not being so reactionary to this single set of committees.
